AIDS UPDATE: GOOD NEWS

AIDS VIRUS MAY HAVE BEEN FOUND

Federal researchers have announced that they believe they may have isolated the virus that causes AIDS. They have labeled the illusive virus HTLV-3 and have developed a process to mass produce it. Meanwhile, scientists in France have also recently announced their discovery of a virus which they believe causes AIDS and which they have labeled LAV.

The two viruses may well turn out to be identical or closely similar. However, definitive laboratory tests to determine whether the two suspected AIDS-causing viruses are the same have not been carried out. If they prove to be identical, scientists will have to deal with the touchy question of who deserves credit for the discovery.

Finding the cause of AIDS will probably not lead to a quick treatment for the dreaded disorder, nor will it necessarily result in a method of prevention. But its finding leads researchers to express hope that a vaccine may be developed and ready for testing in the next few years.

A slight possibility remains that the viruses observed by American and French scientists are not the cause of AIDS after all, but merely part of it. They could be just newly recognized opportunistic infections of the types that afflict AIDS victims. Opportunistic infections are those that are caused by micro-organisms that usually do not make people sick if their immune systems are working properly.

The federal scientists also said that they have developed a test that could reliably detect the virus in blood that is donated for a variety of uses, including the treatment of hemophilia. They said they had applied for a patent on the process and they expect the test to be widely available within six months. "We now have a blood test for AIDS which we hope can be widely available in about six months," Health and Human Services Secretary Margaret Heckler told a news conference. "With the blood test, we can identify AIDS victims with essentially 100 percent certainty." She added, "We should be able to ensure that blood for transfusion is free from AIDS. We should be able to prevent transfusion-related AIDS cases, as well as those which might appear in hemophiliacs."

ALABAMA

The Old South is alive and well in Alabama...but times are changing. The bars are getting better and there are more of them. So, if you have ever "wished you were in the land of cotton," give it a try.

The largest and most industrialized city in Alabama is Birmingham, with a metropolitan populatin of nearly half a million. This metropolis is a progressive and cultural city representative of the "New South."

Vulcan Park, atop Red Mountain, furnishes an excellent panoramic view of the city. Its sixteen-ton Vulcan, God of Fire and Forge, is the largest iron figure ever cast.

The best hotels are the Hilton opposite the Medical Center and the Hyatt Birmingham. There are no gay dinner houses.

A hot new country and western cruise bar is the Quest at 416 S. 24th Street...something Birmingham has needed for a long time. The Gizmo at 909 S. 22nd St. is good anytime, but is especially popular with men after hours and on weekends. The recently remodeled Bill's Club at 208 N. 23rd St. is the top choice with most ladies, who also like Basics for after-hours on weekends. Twinkies frequent Belle's Disco, and if that fabulous show "Dream Girls" ever plays Birmingham, they will probably hold the cast party at the After Dark.

Montgomery is the state capital, and a favorite with history buffs. When Jefferson Davis was innaugurated President of the Confederacy on February 18, 1861, Montgomery became the first capital of the Confederate States of America. From here was sent the wire to "Fire on Fort Sumter" that started the Civil War, or as it is sometimes referred to in these parts, "the War of Northern Aggression." Visitors may enjoy a ride on the 19th-century sternwheeler "General Richard Montgomery," which provides a riverboat tour along the beautiful Alabama River.

Ho-Jon's at 215 N. Court is the most popular gay club in town. It offers a disco with an excellent sound system, good shows, a quiet masculine upstairs bar, and discreet off-street parking. The City Jail (formerly Dexter Pub) at 207 Dexter and B & R at 211 Lee are private clubs that are liveliest after hours. The Holiday Inn Capitol is conveniently located near the bars. Montgomery is home of the Blue-Gray Football Classic, one of the oldest Bowl games.

Mobile, the second largest city in the state and the only port on Alabama's Gulf Coast, has long been a favorite of mine. Much older than the other cities, it was founded by the French in 1702. An international heritage still lives in the city's architecture and unique ambiance. A 'must' for visitors is Bellingrath Gardens, one of the loveliest in the South. The Battleship USS Alabama, Fort Conde, and Mobile Greyhound Park may be of interest too. This is the only American city besides New Orleans to celebrate Mardi Gras. Other annual events are the Blessing of the Shrimp Fleet and America's Junior Miss Pageant.

The Club Park Avenue is an exciting new private Club at 7 S. Joachim, just off Conti. Downstairs is a quiet cruise bar and patio, while the disco is upstairs. The Corral at 54 S. Conception can be good for late night cruising. Troopers and the Society are between the Park Avenue and Corral, which are only a block apart. David's on Spring Hill is a ways out and hard to find.

Northernmost Huntsville with a population of 150,000 was originally called Twickenham. Today it is better known as "Rocket City." It was the birthplace of NASA and is home of the Alabama Space Museum and Rocket Center. The Atlantis at 2572 Sparkman Drive is currently the only gay bar, and a good one at that. It has a large disco and offers a program of weekly events. The Huntsville Hilton is the best place to stay, and for dining try the Rib Cellar or Twickenham Station. Huntsville's greatest gift to gay people..."dawhlings"...was the marvelous Talullah Bankhead.

The best times to visit 'Bama are in the spring and fall, because summers are hot and humid, and it can get real cool in the winter. Now that the old "red-neck" image is becoming a thing of the past, Alabama can be a fun place to visit. Southern Hospitality can be awfully contagious, and you could lose your heart in the "Heart of Dixie".

BOOK REVIEW

My Deep Dark Pain Is Love, A Collection of Latin American Gay Fiction. Winston Leyland, Ed., Gay Sunshine Press, San Francisco. 383 pp. $10 (paper).

Reviewed by Jay Harrison

One point a collection such as this establishes immediately is that gay men seem to be the same wherever there is freedom to write. While that isn't news, of course, the proposition argues for the belief in a gay sensibility, however bleary and imprecise our present understanding of the phenomenon may be.

Why, we may ask, are these gay men so much like ourselves or others we've encountered? Why, with their cultural mix of Indian, Spanish, or Portugese, and in many cases Black, weighted by the dead hand of Catholicism and rotten governments, do they give no better nor any worse voice to the condition of being homosexual? Given models such as Paz, Amado, Garcia Marquez, Vargas Llosa, Asturias, de Assis, et al., why is this writing so familiar, so self-conscious, and ultimately so bland?

It may be comforting to know that we are all brothers, after all, that we have the same coming-out stories, with a variation or two. We may like to think we were actually seduced, as fresh-faced cadets or schoolboys, by macho power (when actually it was probably a fifty-fifty agreement), we too may have considered suicide as the only answer in a world where everyone else was different—callous, pitiless, and happy.

So as a statement of international fellowship, these stories are reassuring. We may not all speak the same language but we know the same tongue.

Straight Latin American fiction is often homoerotic because there still yawns a chasm between what men do and what women do. And, except as objects for sex, fertility, decoration, or scorn, women are of little importance. Latin American men have always kept for themselves the privileges of fraternity. Therefore, while they might hesitate to admit their attraction to their buddies, and employ the whorehouse as the accepted nightcap for their carousals when suitably drunk, they are unshrinking in their devotion to maleness.

Perhaps this culturally built-in misogynism, left over from the days of the fierce cacique, the hacienda lords, this swaggering pride of hijos de la Chingada, works against gay Latin American fiction. Although many of the writers here represented resort to shocking external plot devices, and we recognize the sterotypes of satire, we do not feel the shock of great fiction.

Nothing in this collection remotely ascends to the level of Amado's extravagant humor or Garcia Marquez' magic realism or Vargas Llosa's invention or Fuentes' brilliant anger.

But some of the stories are worth reading, as another martini is worth drinking. The most erotic is "Orgy," by an Argentine whose true identity the editor has kept from us. Whoever "Lucio Ginarte" is, he manages to minipulate his reader with the assurance of a tour guide who understand the value of understatement while tantalizing, while walking us through a bazaar of exotic merchandise we aren't allowed to touch or buy.

The publication of "ORGY" should have resulted in a mass invasion of the city of Recife, Brazil, if the boys, both black and white, are as horny and available there as Ginarte tells us.

A strand of violence underlies a number of stories. One of the best is Alexandre Ribondi's "The Blue Crime," tangentially about the rape and murder of a young man, but actually about the growing relationship between Eustaquio Boechat, an amateur poet, and Geraldo, a taxi driver who—it turns out—is the murderer. He killed the boy, he confesses to a horrified Eustaquio, because the boy loved him. This is terrible news because Eustaquio finds himself in the same position; he's falling in love.

Back to the sinister humor of the macho. It's okay to fuck your buddy, even the other way around, but to love is to be soft. To admit you care is to be queer.

The most well known of the authors is probably Manuel Puig from Argentina whose novel Kiss of The Spider Woman was reviewed in these pages recently. Here he is represented by three short pieces set in New York, where Puig lived for a time. These are really only sketches, satiric in tone with a distinctly hardened drag-queen flavor, desperate and shrill.

On balance, what these stories lack is the same as what much Norte Americano gay fiction lacks: a sense of wit, high invention, and the use of a blue pencil.

HOROSCOPES

by Dr. Pat Larr

Gemini (May 21-Jun 20)—You find yourself surrounded by admirers this month. Remember, nobody can touch your sizeable accomplishments unless you want them to. If they tell you that you have a knockout bod, feel free to hold it against them.

Cancer (Jun 21-Jul 22)—Find whatever pleasures you can on them home front because at work your boss gives new meaning to the word peon. If you're given the shaft, grin and bear it.

Leo (Jul 23-Aug 22)—Is this the real thing or just a fickle fling? You get to decide when you meet up with a smouldering new someone mid-month. The moon retrograde helps you make the right choice.

Virgo (Aug 23-Sep 22)—You're cooking with gas in the Romance Department as Venus enters your sign the first of the month. You've got the right recipe and all the right stuff to turn out a dish so tasty that that special someone will want to eat you.

Libra (Sep 23-Oct 22)—Watch those finances! Someone close to you wants to take you for all you're worth (and you've got a lot to give, kid). So don't spend it all in one place if you've got any sense.

Scorpio (Oct 23-Nov 22)—Your favorite planetary playmates, Venus and Mercury, set up camp (and I do mean camp)in your House of Romance this month. Expect lots of laughs between the sheets (no anatomy jokes please).

Sagittarius (Nov 23-Dec 21)—Don't be so hard on a well-meaning friend. He/she has your best interest at heart. If you want to be hard on someone that special, someone sure could use being hard on.

Capricorn (Dec 22-Jan 21)—Spring greets you with love in bloom. Weed out that tired old lover and sow some wild oats. Your seed could flower into a strange and wonderful relationship.

Aquarius (Jan 20-Feb 18)—The green-eyed monster comes to call mid-month. You've got nothing to be jealous about, it's just that that special someone loves to see you prove your love. So the next time you catch him/her flirting, try to cool it.

Pices (Feb 19-20)—The first part of spring's a slow time for the fish. What a drag! No one to dress up for. No one to make up to. No footloose dancing shoes. Hang in there. You'll be kicking up your heels by month's end.

Aries (Mar 21-Apr 19)—That cat-and-mouse game you've been playing with someone new comes to a sorry end. You wind up with egg on your puss, and get treated like a rat. Time to lick your wounds and wait for next time.

Taurus (Apr 20-May 20)—Do you hear bells when you kiss? You should; that's a cash register you hear. Love and money both gain interest for you this month. Invest in them.

FAUX PAS

by Ed E. Kett

Dear Mr. Kett,

I often entertain my male friends at some of the gay restaurants located in this city. Sometimes I am the only woman present. At other times, we're evenly divided; but in any case, it never fails that the waiter gives my male companions their menu first, takes their orders first, brings their food first, and them places the bill discreetly beside one of them even when I am paying for the entire meal. Is this par for the course in most middle-brow gay restaurants these days?

Yours
Edna

Dear Edna,

Yes, I'm afraid this is a nasty habit that some restaurants have fallen into. But it's not entirely their fault. It's up to you to indicate your position with regard to the table. Usually the waiter defers to the person who speaks first. If you don't make it clear who's the dominant personality at the table, your cute little waiter naturally lavishes all his attention on whoever strikes his fancy. The next time the waiter comes to take your order, speak up. Waiters catch on fast, and once it's clear to them who's in charge, you can usually indicate who is to order bext. I tend to let the cute ones order first and the drunk ones order last.

Ever,
Edwards Endicott Kett

Dear Edwards Kett,

My lover and I recently wore full-dress black leather to a private cocktail party. Although we wore only the finest chains, jackets, caps, and chaps, we didn't wear any Levis, which naturally left our buns exposed, (My lover has a great set of buns and I love to see him show them off.) Later it got back to us that some of the people at the party thought our attire, or should I say, the lack of it, was, well, cheeky. What do you say?

Sincerely
Constantin

Dear Constantin,

I've always felt that heavy leather drag adds a lot of local color to a party just as long as you don't leave any on the couch.

Always,
Edwards Endicott Kett

THE KITCHEN FAIRY

DANCING 'ROUND THE MALE POLE: A FIESTA IN BLUE!

Areeba, honey! It's May—the lusty month of May. Oozing with gay abandon, it's the month when things begin to heat up for the summer's fun. May—the month for dancing 'round the male pole, and in California (that wondrous gay mecca) it is time to celebrate Cinco de Mayo (that's May 5th, gringo!)—anniversary of a famous turn-of-the-century battle when the hunky, swarthy and greatly outnumbered Mexican army beat off the French near a city called Puebla. (Oooh, la, la! How butch!) Now, it's a big fiesta and a splendid reason to party, party, party! (I'm always looking for a reason...)

So ole everyone! Here's a hot-blooded brunch that will help you bound out of bed—with a drink that will send you right back! Believe me, senor, this and a little mariachi music will get you everywhere (a big mariachi will take you even farther!). So shake those maracas, doll! This is the month of yes-you-May—so do! And do try this on your Latin connection:

HOMO'S RANCHEROS

Serves: 4

My dear friend Marz claims, if you can fry an egg, you can whip up (oooh) this delightful concocktion. The boy must be right. He's practically comatose most AMs yet can manage to pull this off (you can bet that's not all he pulls!). At any rate, it is most tasty, and should you have an egg hater to brunch (there's one in every crowd), it is equally satisfying minus the eggs. Gracias, Marz! You are truly a gay caballero!

PREPARATION TIME: 1/2 hr.
COOKING TIME: 10 min.

Ingredients:

8 eggs
8 corn or flour tortillas
2 1/2 Tablespoons medium-hot salsa per tortilla
1/2 cup chopped scallions
3 cups shredded Monterey Jack cheese
1 pound can of refried beans
3 Tablespoons butter
1/4 cup medium-hot salsa
3/4 teaspoon ground coriander
2 Tablespoons minced scallions

Preparation:

1. Preheat your oven to 350 degrees.
2. Doctor up the beans: Saute the 2 Tablespoons scallions in the butter till they are just soft. Add the 1/2 cup salsa, coriander and the beans. Mix well and heat through.
3. Fry your eggs until they are just shy (titter, titter) of being perfectly done. They will finish cooking in your oven.
4. Lay your tortillas (ooooh, my little tortilla!) on a cookie sheet.
5. Spread each tortilla with 2 1/2 Tablespoons of salsa, 2 to 3 Tablespoons of beans (too many beans can get heavy!).
6. Sprinkle each with 2 teaspoons of scallion.
7. Top each with an egg.
8. Smother with the cheese.
9. Pop in the oven for 5 to 10 minutes until the cheese is melted and bubbles on the sides.
10. Serve with additional salsa.

SENOREATERS GUACAMOLE

Yield: 1 1/2 cups

The trick to really great "guac" (and who among us can't use a good trick!) is to choose ripe but not mushy avocados, to stir in lemon juice to keep them from turning brown and to go easy on the Tabasco (some things in life can get too, too hot). This is one of my favorite things to do with a ripe avocado...

PREPARATION TIME: 15 min.

Ingredients:

2 large, ripe ones (avocados, that is)
2 Tablespoons lemon juice
2 Tablespoons fresh, minced onion
1/4 teaspoon salt
Tabasco, to taste (Add it a drop at a time. There's no turning back!)
Note: You can also stir in seeded, chopped tomato or chopped pimento for color.

Preparation:

1. Cut the avocados in half, remove the pit and skin them.
2. Mash the pulp with a fork, coarsely so it still has some texture. Blend in the lemon juice.
3. Add the onion, salt and (carefully, now) the Tabasco. Blend.

The Kitchen Fairy

Listen to Lavendre

Dear Lavendre,

My lover, Anna Beth, has me stumped. Maybe you can help.

You see, I am a dog lover; always have been, always will be. Anna Beth doesn't seem to appreciate dogs, any dogs, especially my three dogs who are named Aida, Norma, and Gilda. But to have me, she has to put up with my mutts.

Anna Beth is from New York City. We live in Albuquerque near where I was born. We are planning a trip next summer back to New York so that I can meet my in-laws for the first time. Of course, my mutts will go or I won't; Anna Beth realizes that. But now she's telling me that among the in-laws I'm slated to meet are her three maiden aunts named Aida, Norma, and Gilda. What's more, she's claiming that said three maiden aunts will be very hurt to learn that there are three mutts in the world with those very same first names and that as a result they—the aunts—will probably refuse to acknowledge me. Anna Beth thinks that I should leave the mutts at home; instead, I've offered to temporarily rename them and am thinking of Lorelei, Snooks, and Gizelle. Now Anna Beth is sulking and hinting that she just may call off the trip to New York.

How do you think I should handle this ticklish situation?

Michelene
(Mike)

Dear Michelene,

More people would be dog lovers if dog lovers would consider more people.

Mike, toss all feelings aside on this one! Do you realize how humid and hot a trip of that length would be for you and your dogs? Good grief! As much as I love New York, the city itself doesn't need extra dogs. Your dogs do not need the urgencies created in a big city's hassles.

Besides, Anna Beth probably needs a break for awhile. Sometimes attachments (including canine ones) need separations, simply for the sake of quietude.

Find a trusted friend who'll stay at your home with the dogs. Leave on a happy note. The dogs will take that easier.

And don't worry! An old friend of mine left her two dogs with a mutual friend. One week into the stay, one of the dogs took sick suddenly and damn near died; but we whipped up a batch of chicken soup and force-fed her, and the dog recovered good as new!

PS If these aren't good enough reasons, write to Mr. Edwards E. Kett, (c/o this paper) about dogs, manners, and travel.

Dear Lavendre,

I'm gay. That I'll admit. But that doesn't mean that I feel at ease around or am attracted to every other gay person.

I'm a junior in a large university here in Toledo. One of my professors is an old cow that I spied no long ago in a woman's bar in this city. She spied me too.

Now every day in class she manages to either wink at me or to find some excuse to slightly rub up against me. Frankly, I'm repulsed by this person. But if I don't get a good grade in this class, my Dad will force me to drop out of college because I'm already on academic probation. I'm afraid if I complain or something, Madame Bovine will find some clever way to do me in.

What do you advise me to do?

Antoinette

Antoinette (Tony),

We've all had a Frau Cow in our pasts. When I did, I forced my repulsion to give way to a restrained flirtation, especially since I sensed that to do so might help my career. In that "forced vengence," I came to rather like Bovinia (as I called her). What comes around, goes around, huh? Try that approach.

However, you could also be more direct and simply explain that you're there to learn, not spurn, and that your sex life doesn't have a bit to do with that position. To confront your Frau Cow with this approach would, however, be very difficult.

Frankly, I'd go for the gold. An inventive, harmless little smile-wink will get you that grade. Be nice. Milk of human kindness runs freely.

GETTIN THERE

by TOM DOLAN

MAYBE THIS TIME

Comfortable nude on the edge of his friend's pool, Daryl checked his pubic hair for crabs, an inelegant but necessary task. He felt as if he were posing for a painting by David Hockney, who discovered Southern California in the 70s.

"The neatest looking guys sometimes have them," he reminded himself as he flicked a small grey creature into turquoise waters. Guys like Phillip, who had accosted him in the pool the night before and insisted they'd be living together within a week. A trip to the bedroom had done nothing to dampen the man's ardor.

"Fat chance! I'm not about to be swept away," Daryl observed, though Phillip appeared to have the wherewithal to get almost anything he wanted. He had, by his own admission, produced some Major Motion Pictures.

Nevertheless, something had happened. The sky was bluer; breakfast tasted better. Could his cells be vibrating at a higher frequency? "Maybe this time...." he crooned in his best Liza Minelli, threw his head back and laughed.

"What's so funny?" smirked his roommate and former lover, Lee, who draped a purple and orange towel over the back of a poolside chair.

"I think I'm in love," said Daryl, surprising his friend as well as himself. Normally an unspoken prohibition against the word prevented him from thinking or speaking in those terms. He paused to light a Marlboro.

"How uncharacteristic!" mocked Lee.

"Is that the best you can do?" asked Daryl, planting a bare foot squarely on a glass and chrome etagere and clipping his toenails.

"What do you want me to say?" asked Lee.

"You don't have to say anything. On second thought, you could be happy for me," instructed Daryl, filling his lungs with smoke. "This could be the real thing."

"Don't be maudlin," chided Lee as he cannonballed into sun-warmed water. "I can't understand why anybody in his right mind would want to get involved with a World Class slob whose track record is as bad as yours."

"I always warn them," replied Daryl.

"They never believe you," said Lee.

"That's their problem," said Daryl with exquisite aplomb.

"They think you're kidding."

"I know. I have a wonderful sense of humor, don't I?" countered Daryl. "Maybe the challenge turns them on—my having six lovers in as many months."

"The truth is you're afraid your virginity will grow back if you aren't laid every night!" hollered Lee from the water.

Daryl crushed his cigarette into the hand-painted tiles that lined the pool, then flicked it into the oleanders. "I don't have to listen to this rubbish," he tossed over his shoulder as he strode toward the pink stucco house, dragging his towel like a soggy tail. He was mindful that last night's dinner dishes lay under this morning's breakfast dishes in the sink. And the Rolls wanted waxing. Lee's disposition usually brightened when Daryl tackled his chores. After all, it was Lee's house, Lee's car, Lee's everything.

"I do believe you're jealous!" fired Daryl toward the pool a fraction of a second before slamming the French doors.

It occurred to him he might listen to old sex tapes while he did the dishes. Daryl headed for the cabinet where he kept hiscollection, made without the knowledge or consent of his arious partners. He selected "Phillip" and pushed the tape into place. As if on cue, a man began to groan.

Phillip's passion filled the house as Daryl pulled on his jeans and headed for the bathroom, where an ill-used Playgirl was the only literature in sight. "I'll enjoy the dishes a whole lot more if I brush my teeth first," he muised. On another level he remembered the morning an uncharitable trick told him his breath smelled like the inside of a rancid rubber glove. Some woulds never heal.

Just then the doorbell chimed, "It's Raining Men!" Daryl clutched his jeans with both hands and hobbled to the door. It was Phillip.

"Phillip! What are you doing here?"

"Aren't you going to invite me in?" asked the apparition in white shorts and matching tennis shoes. Sounds made by a man fast approaching orgasm filled the house.

"What's that?" asked the apparition.

"Let me turn it off!" said Daryl, hanging onto his jeans.

"What is that?" repeated Phillip.

"Oh, just some party records I was trying out...."

"Kind of early in the day for that, isn't it?" asked the man in white.

"Actually, they're Lee's tapes. He's out by the pool. Why don't you visit with him till I get myself together?" said Daryl lunging for the off-button on Lee's tape deck.

"Thought you might like to go for a ride," said Phillip. "I've got my MG today."

"Oh, really? I didn't know you had an MG!"

"Why don't you just button up your fly and come out for a ride?"

"The dishes are sitting in the sink, the car needs to be washed and waxed...."

"You have the rest of your life to do the dishes! Get in the car!" ordered Phillip.

"Did somebody give you dominance lessons, or are you the man of my dreams?" asked Daryl, not waiting for an answer. Without bidding Lee so much as a fond farewell, Daryl and Phillip vanished into the smoggy morning.

At dusk Daryl dragged himself over the threshhold to find his conscience sitting on the sofa. "Where the hell have you been?" asked Lee.

"Out," sniffed Daryl.

"Out? What does that mean?" queried Lee.

"Oh, I spent the better part of the day with Phillip and had a mostly wonderful time. Unfortunately, it ended rather badly."

"What happened?"

"To make a long, complicated story short and simple, he offered me a stick of gum, which I innocently accepted. When I tossed the wrapper out the window, he pulled his MG over to the curb and told me to get out. I had to walk all the way home from Pasadena."

"I don't understand. Why...."

"Phillip said I was a fabulous in the sack, but he couldn't possibly be in love with somebody who tosses gum wrappers out the car window. Oh, well...'Maybe Next Time'...." crooned Daryl in his best Garland, tossing his head back and laughing hysterically.

HISTORY OF THE EMPIRE

by Walt Preston

(Editor's note: The PATLAR GAZETTE from time to time receives letters asking for background information about the so-called Gay Court. So we asked Mr. Walt Preston to prepare a short, informative article about the Court.

Mr. Preston holds the GNIE title of Duke of Dragonlaire and the life-title of Duke of Dragonlaire of All-California. He is the personal secretary to the Dowager Empress Billy I.)

Recently, visitors to Sacramento's gay bars were bombarded with posters proclaiming candidates for Emperor or Empress of the Great Northwest Imperial Empire—lovingly called GNIE. One often hears questions about what it is and where it all began.

About 30 years ago, the style of the then emerging "gay community" was drag. To be gay meant to go in drag. And so it was that in Seattle, when a group of gays got together to form a charity fund-raising organization, drag titles were choosen. The President was an Emperor, Vice-President an Empress, and Imperial Titles were given out as camp fun.

Some visitors from Portland picked up the idea of Imperial Monarchs, elected for a year, to preside over the gay community. From there it spread to San Francisco. We now have "local Empires" in Alaska, Hawaii, British Columbia, Baja California, California, Nevada, Utah, Colorado, Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, Kentucky, Ohio, and Idaho. Empires are appearing everyday.

GNIE was granted independence from San Francisco in 1974 during the reign of Empress Maxine. Billy Tree was crowned our first Empress; Aunt Rose became the Queen Mother; and Tim was our first Emperor. Tim, called Timothy the Great, claimed all of California north of San Francisco for GNIE. His sword is still being passed to each reigning Emperor.

About five years ago, the County of San Joaquin was granted independence from GNIE and the Delta Empire was born. During the reign of LARRY VII and Ginger VIII, the Tahoe Basin was ceded to Imperial Reno.

The Empires all send their historical records to the Imperial Archives in Denver, Colorado.

Although the titles are mostly camp, there are some rules:

Life-titles, granted by the monarchs with consent of the Governing Board of Directors, are prefaced by "Imperial." Those folks can sit on the Board.

Year-long-titles, also granted by the monarchs, are for their reign only and are prefaced by "Royal."

New members are "Lord" or "Lady."

The empires elect a King-Father and Queen-Mother of all California each year. All their titles are "Royal...of All-California."

The reigning monarchs are addressed as "your most Imerial Majesty," and after their reign as "your Majesty" or in GNIE, for state occasions, as "Your Imperial Majesty." The monarchs are elected by everyone (member of GNIE or not) who lives within the Empire.

Later in the year, GNIE will then elect a Grand Duke and a Grand Duchess. They rule for a year and represent the monarchs in the absences of Their Most Imperial Majesties. Should the throne become vacant during the reign, The Grand Duke or Duchess succeeds to the throne as "Regent Emperor/Empress," with the consent of the GNIE, and Board of Directors.

And there you have it—crystal clear! See you at the Coronation.

IGHC HANDBOOK AVAILABLE

The IGHC Handbook of Member Clubs is now available. It is the first time that gay health clubs and bathhouses have banded together to provide information about what's available in cities across the country. Unlike gay guides, which simply give the name and address of clubs, the Handbook gives a wealth of information. It gives information on 32 different clubs from coast to coast—their prices, what facilities they offer, and time limits. It also answers many other pertinent questions: Is there parking available? Does the club cater to specialty groups such as the leather scene? What kind of activities are available besides standard bathhouse fare? What's the easiest way to get to the club? Does the club play music? How loud? What kind? Is liquor served? Is membership required?

For the gay traveler on a budget, the Handbook is helpful. The gay traveler can literally plan and budget a trip from coast to coast without staying in a hotel. He'll also know in advance what his night's lodging will cost, and what to expect in the way of amenities from the facility.

The book can be ordered by sending one dollar to: IGHC HANDBOOK OF MEMBER CLUBS, 303 N. Senate Avenue, Indianapolis, IN 46204.

SWINDLE

The US Postal Service recently announced that many gay men have been victimized by prison pen pals in a money-order swindle involving hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The swindle results when a prisoner asks the correspondent to cash an altered postal-service money order at a bank and give the money to a friend of the convict outside prison. The Postal Service recovers the money from the bank and the bank charges the customer. However, the money the victim gave to the prisoner's friend is gone and cannot be recovered.

Many of the deceptions have been done by prisoners in Mississipi, Indiana, and Florida.

MARCH

A gay march is being planned in San Francisco the day before the Democratic Convention starts, to ensure that delegates address gay issues in the party platform. Thousands of gay women and men are expected to march July 15 from Castro Street down Market Street to the Moscone Convention Center.

The march will be the first national gay march since 1979 when between 100,000 and 150,000 people participated in an event in Washington, DC. Gay activists indicated that its tone would be one of support rather than protest.

ARMY

In Portland, Maine, a federal court has ruled that Diane Matthews, 26, cannot be discharged from the Army simply because she is gay. The US Army was ordered to reinstate the woman who was kicked out of the service because she proclaimed her lesbianism.

The Army argued that having a proclaimed gay person in its ranks could damage morale. The court concluded that there was no evidence that Matthews committed a homosexual act. Consequently, dismissal just for proclaiming herself a lesbian was a violation of her constitutional rights. The Army had no immediate comment on whether it would appeal the case.

DEATH

Researchers are becoming increasingly concerned about an extremely dangerous sexual practice in which self-induced erotic pleasure is increased by near-asphyxiation usually caused by a noose around the neck.

In a significant number of cases, the person becomes unconscious and dies before the oxygen supply can be restored. These deaths are frequently mislabeled as suicides. It is estimated that 500 to 1000 deaths from autoerotic asphyxia occur each year in the United States.

The majority of sexual asphyxia victims are young males, mainly teenagers and young adults, but the ages of victims have ranged from 9 to 77 and include a small number of females.

Even though unconscious victims of autoerotic asphyxiation may be rescued, it may be too late to prevent permanent brain damage.

NEW SUIT FOR CIA

A federal court in Los Angeles recently allowed a gay man to proceed with a lawsuit against the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA). The man alleges his top-secret security clearance was revoked simply because of his sexual orientation.

The suit was brought by John W. Green, 50, who had had access to sensitive information for 10 years. The CIA learned that Green was gay when another gay man applied for a security clearance and listed him as a reference.

DINERS

A California State Court of Appeals has ruled that two lesbian lovers have the right to dine in private restaurant booths that the owner had tried to restrict to male-female couples only.

In January 1983, the Papa Choux restaurant in Los Angeles ordered Deborah Johnson and her lover Zandra Rolon out of an intimate curtained booth that they had reserved to celebrate the birthday of Martin Luther King, Jr. The restaurant owner said the booths could not be used by couples of the same sex.

The appellate court held that California's Unruh Civil Rights Act does not permit businessowners to deny access to their establishments unless patrons violate reaasonable rules of conduct. Attorneys for Papa Choux indicated the decision will be appealed to the State Supreme Court.

GPA CONVENTION PLANNED

THE Gay Press Association (GPA) will hold its 1984 annual national convention in Los Angeles on Memorial Day Weekend, May 25-28.

The GPA has invited all presidential candidates to address the conference since the California Presidential Primaries will be held one week after the convention.

To obtain more information about the convention, contact Jay Morris at (818) 764-1640. For more information about registration or about the GPA, call Mike Rutherford, Executive Director of the GPA, at (213) 873-3663.

Gay Film

Filmmaker Paul A. Sergios will produce a documentary soon about the problems gay fathers have. He is looking for gay fathers, their wives, children, and lovers who are interested in sharing their stories.

Sergios achieved recognition last year for his award-winning gay-themed documentary Albert Tanzler. The 28-minute film, which told the story of a group of gay teenagers "coming out" in a small Southern town, won top honors at the Chicago International Film Festival.

Through his presentation, Sergios will challenge the notion that a homosexual household provides a limited set of role-model choices. The precedent by recent California court decisions on custody rights for gay fathers will be examined and interviews with social psychologists and activists attempting to improve the quality of life for gay fathers will be included.

In his upcoming production on gay fathers, Sergios wants to present a diversity of perspectives in his coverage, including those of children now being raised by gay fathers.

Birmingham, Alabama, Mayor Richard Arrington, who is black and who is in his second term as the chief executive of the city remembered for the racial tensions of the '60s, recently welcomed a convention of homosexuals to that city. Birmingham has long been associated with conservatism.

Gays from 13 states and the District of Columbia descended upon Birmingham to participate in the Ninth Annual Southeastern Conference for Lesbians and Gay Men. Bootsie Abelson, co-director of the Birmingham steering committee, said the conference symbolized a "coming out" for that city's gay community and a major stride forward for the national movement. "For Birmingham, Alabama, to be holding this conference is really intense," she said.

According to Mayor Arrington, who credited gays with helping bring about change, "The Birmingham of today is quite different from the Birmingham of 10 or 15 years ago." "(Lesbians and gay men) have organized well to work for the rights they believe in. And I believe they have made some strides to working for the maturation of the social and economic system of the city."

All responses are anonymous, with surveys returned by postage-free envelopes. Participants will be sent a copy of the findings of the study if they want. To participate or for more information, write to Dr. J. Patrick Schmitt, Wright State University, Psychology Department, Dayton, OH 45435

EAST LANSING

A lawsuit to prohibit a $1500 appropriation by the Ingham County Board of Commissioners to the Lesbian/Gay Hotline was dismissed recently. Eight county taxpayers contended the appropriation was illegal because the Lansing Association for Human Rights, which operates the Hotline, promotes homosexuality, which is an illegal activity under Michigan laws.

However, the court held that the county contract with the Hotline is for health and crisis intervention services and does not itself promote any illegal activity. Since gays and lesbians are citizens of the county, they are entitled to health (counseling and referral) services.

Contributions to the Hotline are needed to make up the balance of its budget not covered by governmental grants. Contributions may be sent to the Lesbian/Gay Hotline, PO Box 1512, East Lansing, MI 48823.

CLEARLAKE

They say that April showers bring May flowers. Well, maybe so in some places. But in ClearLake, they brought MEN. At least that was the way it was for the Valley Knight's run to the Lake—leather, hot men, and good partying. The summer hasn't even started yet, but many things are being planned by both bars and resorts. If any groups are planning a trip to ClearLake, the resorts are ready. Call early for reservations: Sunset Point (707) 998-9933; The Shamrock Resort (707) 998-3331; Glenhaven Inn (707) 998-3260...Toga! Toga!! Toga!!! Yes, a party to start off the summer, toga in at the Cabaret on May 19 at 9 PM. That's when the fun is just getting started. This is a party that you won't want to miss, so make plans now. By the way, Thursday night at the Cabaret is when you can have your shot of schnapps for for only 75 cents. The month of June will be jumping; yes, it is that time of year again—the Cabaret will soon be two years young...Wednesday night at Gene's Saloon is free pool, and Sunday night ia cash night—tickets you receive on Saturday and Sunday are put in a drawing for the amount of the kitty, and if no one wins, the amount goes up, up, up. If there are any gay people from the outlying districts who are into playing volleyball, bring your team and the fun will start with the first serve. The Lake has a very good team and they challenge other teams. For information, call Jimmy Joe at (707) 998-9933...If you're planning a large party and don't want to do the cooking, give a call to Woodquist Catering. Chef David Holtquist will perform his culinary arts for you and Robert will see that everything is well-planned. David and Robert are looking forward to hearing from you for all your catering needs. Call them at (707) 279-1200...The Mt. View Deli is still giving a discount on their great deli sandwiches...The Cracked Skillet is putting out a great meal.

CHICO

by Dereck

Since my article last month, Chico has been very quiet and looking forward to tax season being over.

Now, it's over and things are starting to hum around here. There was a Cross Dress Party at 900 Cherry St. on April 21. The previous weekend was a blast with several people shopping at the Salvation Army and Goodwill Stores for their gowns, shoes, and purses. I was in the company of Ray Grado, owner of the bar, and a friend as we shopped for his outfit. Have you ever tried to find a dress for somebody who is wider around the middle than he is tall?

It turned out to be a riot as we rummaged through the racks and tried on dresses in the open. We received a few curious and furtive stares from some of the women present, but most just watched and laughed along with us. The afternoon turned out to be lots of fun with the enjoyment of meeting other gay friends doing their shopping.

We were able to outfit Ray from head to toe, with a yellow sun bonnet, a long brown wig, a green and yellow dress that actually fit, a pair of multicolored wedgies, and a large beaded shoulder bag to match.

As to future events, listen, a little fairy whispered in my ear that there could be another Drag Nite Party coming in June, another Bikini Contest, with more fun times in the planning. I will keep you informed as these events become confirmed and we all hope that you will be here with us to join in the fun.

Till next month, be healthy, happy, and above all Gay.

DENVER

The Colorado Gay Rodeo Association has scheduled the 2nd Annual Rocky Mountain Regional Rodeo (RMR Rodeo) for June 1-3. The rodeo will be held at the Coal Creek Park Rodeo Arena in Aurora, Colorado (a suburb of Denver).

The Rodeo (only in its second year) is already generating great interest from all over the US as well as several foreign countries. From the number of telephone calls and letters received to date, this should be a grand year for RMR Rodeo and Denver.

The Colorado Gay Rodeo Association (the sponsor for RMR Rodeo) and the Denver Tavern Guild (consisting of 19 bars in the Denver area) have planned events to provide fun and an exciting time for party lovers as well as rodeo fans. Thus, "Denver's Biggest Party of the Year" has become the slogan for the Annual RMR Rodeo.

For hotel, rodeo tickets, and contestant-entry information write The Colorado Gay Rodeo Association at 7900 East Colfax Avenue, Denver, CO 80220 or call the Rodeo Office (6-9 PM MST) Monday through Saturday at (303) 399-1979.

PHOENIX

Phoenix has been chosen at the site for this year's national conference of AFFIRMATION/Gay and Lesbian Mormons. Members of Affirmation from around the country gather annually to discuss issues of importance to the gay and lesbian Mormon. The conference will be held during the weekend of October 12-14.

Affirmation is a social and self-help group of active, inactive, and former members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day-Saints and their supportive friends and relatives. The national organization of Affirmation was formed in 1977 to help lessen paranoia, guilt, fear, and self-oppression by providing a positive and supportive atmosphere where LDS gays and lesbians can meet and help each other affirm self-acceptance and self-worth.

Affirmation brings together gay and lesbian Mormons and interested friends for (1) social interaction, (2) education and dialogue, and (3) spiritual development. The ultimate goal is towards understanding, tolerance, and eventual acceptance of gay persons as full, equal and worthy members within the church. The Phoenix chapter provides programs, projects, and activities as necessary to further these ideals.

Can you imagine a bunch of drunken blindfolded queens swinging a bat at a pinata? Mind boggling to say the least...May 6 Yours Truly named Ernie Brown will host his 11th annual "Mother Jeffrey, Mother Of The Year Awards" starting at 3 PM. There will be raffles, barbecue chicken and ribs, entertainment, and auction. This year we have four candidates for this prestigious award. I hope you won't miss it...The Merc will have their monthly Bingo Party on Mon. For more information on the above, call, Jim Cody, (916) 457-2218...Attn: All doormen (bars): I know sometimes you might think that your job is a thankless position; however, I think most customers appreciate a good doorman. However, it is a paid position, and there are certain decora (that's the plural of "decorum," dears!) that a dorman has to uphold. Politeness is one of them. Remember (and I keep saying this), "A kind word can turn away wrath." Trust me. Attn: all customers. Let the doorman do his job. He is the one that's getting paid for it. Enough on that subject...good luck to our softball team up in Seattle over the Memorial Day Weekend. Bring home that cup...Bon Voyage is in order. Yes, yours truly, is off on another trek. My June article will be written from the high seas. I will keep you abreast of what really goes on on one of those cruises. In Memorium: Don Christopher & June "Dude" A. Rohrer. Rest in peace.

SAN JOSE

By Robert J. Colton

Dear Readers,

I, Robert J. Colton, am a candidate for Emperor VIII for Casa de San Jose. The candidates traditionally supply information about themselves, and I want to do this now. I have lived in San Jose for nearly 5 years and am employed at the Print And Run Printer. I am 34, 6' tall, and weigh 170 and have brown hair and blue eyes.

In the past, candidates have been asked their goals and what they can do for the community of San Jose. However, I want to pose questions for the community. If I am elected to the position of Emperor VIII, what will the community do to help me serve it, and will the people who vote for me stand behind me throughout the whole year? In the past, the people have supported the Monarchs of San Jose, and it is time once again to vote for that person who you believe will do a good job to represent you.

I know that everyone wants to help the community; but in my case, I have actually put time and energy into serving the community. The Christmas Ball was one of the events that I worked on during the reign of Emperor VII Nevan and Lisa Empress XVI.

I ask for your support during the next two months while the campaigns for the offices of Emperor and Empress are underway. The Coronation will take place at Nepredak Hall, 770 Trimbler Road beginning at 6 PM with ceremonies at 7 PM.

I have chosen the colors Black and Brown and will use the Doberman as the emblem of my campaign because I love God's creatures, and they have a right to be loved.

I believe very strongly in my candidacy for Emperor VIII, and I want very much to help everyone whom I can. In the event that I am not successful, I want everyone to know that I will support the new Emperor and Empress.

With much love and respect to the community of San Jose,

Robert J. Colton

WAUKEGAN

In Waukegan, Illinois, a 17-year-old girl who went into a jealous rage when her girlfriend ended their lesbian relationship was recently convicted of the sniper slaying of the girlfriend's new boyfriend.

A jury deliberted nine hours before finding Kimberly Branham quilty of murdering Kurt Barlow, 19, with a high-powered rifle. Prosecutors in the four-day trial had said the shooting last January 2 was motivated by Branham's jealous rage over the interest of her friend Elizabeth Lou, 18, in Barlow.

Branham tearfully told jurors that she was miserably depressed when rejected by her former lesbian lover and that the killing was an accident. But prosecutors questioned Branham's story that the telescopic-sight equipped deer rifle went off accidentally when she picked up the weapon.

GAY INTRODUCTION SERVICE

Dating has not been among the most treasured customs of the gay community. Generally, gay men have not been able to rely on relatives or co-workers for introductions. A gay man commonly finds a man at a bar.

Dating is now in. This accounts for the recent emergence in the gay community of an institution long-established among heterosexuals: The Dating Service. Such a service matches compatable pairs into working friendships/relationships.

If the idea of an arranged date intrigues you but you lack a relative or co-worker to help, don't despair. Give Man-Two-Man a call. It is the only gay-oriented dating service in the Sacramento area.

Man-Two-Man has provided a weekly gathering for the past two years for men interested in developing friendships/relationships with other men. The organization recently discontinued its weekly socal gatherings. Now it is able to provide a personalized introduction service for men.

Man-Two-Man does not guarantee to locate Mr. Wonderful or that the match will produce a long-term relationship. The service is designed to put a man in touch with another man who shares common interests, background, and goals. The men must develop a friendship/relationship on their own after the introduction.

The participants in Man-Two-Man include gay and bisexuals from 20 to 60 and represent a wide diversity of interests and backgrounds.

Is a dating service for you? It may be, if you are genuinely friendship/relationship oriented. For more information write Man-To-Man, PO Box 22402, Sacramento, CA 95822 or call (916) 391-9755.

OKLAHOMA

A federal appeals court ruled recently that an Oklahoma statute intended to eliminate gay teachers is unconstitutional. A suit was filed to halt the enforcement of the law in 1979, the year it was enacted. Known as the Helm Bill, the statute prohibited any discussion of homosexuality which could come to the attention of school children or school employees. A US District Court in Oklahoma upheld the law in 1982, but the decision was appealed.

The apellate court reversed the decision because the law was vague, overbroad, and unconstitutionally infringed on First Amendment rights.

LOS ANGELES

Senior gays now have a resource to obtain help for a wide variety of personal needs. The Society for Senior Gay and Lesbian Citizens (SSGLC) was founded in 1980.

The SSGLC offers many benefits including information on housing, a 24-hour senior-citizen's hotline, and a wide volunteer network designed to help senior citizerns with their needs .

In addition, SSGLC is involved with educating people of all ages in order to eradicate the negative stereotype associated with aging in the gay and lesbian community. Requests for information should be sent to SSGLC, "Project Rainbow," The Angelus Plaza, Room 410, 255 S. Hill Street, Los Angeles, CA 90012.
